MOODY SOME MORE

The Ottawa editorial factory has taken Insp. Moody under its wing. Protecting him by speaking of him through his party it says:

"They have cut a path from Edmonton to the water stretch leading down to Dawson, that has already been utilized by prospectors passing in and out."

Without detracting in any way from the value of the report on the country traversed by Moody's party, to be made by the two young engineers accompanying him, it is not fair that Moody should have the credit of cutting trails for prospectors which they had to cut in all cases for themselves and in some cases for him. It is not fair that good work done by officers and men of the police force should be detracted from by misrepresenting the travels of Insp. Moody as good work. From Edmonton to Fort St. John Moody travelled well known trails, most of which are marked on government maps dated fifteen and twenty years ago, upon which prospectors were travelling before and behind him. It is a fact that Moody made the last stretch of his journey to Fort St. John under the guidance of the guide of W. E. Johnstone, of Montreal, a prospector who left Edmonton several weeks after Moody. None of the prospecting parties of this season followed the trail which he did to Fort St. John. From Fort St. John to Fort Graham Moody travelled with dogs in winter. Just how much trail he cut in this case to the advantage of men travelling with horses in the following summer may be imagined. The prospectors who left Edmonton in February and March had reached and passed beyond Fort Graham before Insp. Moody, who had left Edmonton in the previous August, was ready to start from that point. Up to the last accounts received from Fort Graham in July last he was following the prospectors who were cutting the trail of which he was getting the benefit. He may have done better since; but that was his record up to the 20th of July last. It is to the prospectors and not to Insp. Moody that Canada owes the knowledge she has acquired of the Upper Peace River and the way to get there.

THE GLOBE closes a long and elaborate explanation and defense of its editorial vagaries by stating that it "has no apology to offer to friend or foe for the part it has taken in connection with the Crow's Nest Railway. Public, not private, interests governed its course throughout." Possibly the Globe's explanation is clear and conclusive—to itself and those for whom it acts. The pity of it is that the Globe should have to explain and defend at all, to say nothing of its making such a sorry fist of its explanation and defence. That is what sticks in the throat of the men who believed in the Globe as they did in the Bible, and whose belief carried the liberal party through election after election. Belief in the honesty of the Globe will be a small part of the strength of the liberal party at the next election. By the way, as the Globe alleges that it is guided by public, not private, interests regarding the Crow's Nest railway, why has it not used its influence to have that railway pushed to completion, instead of being hung up indefinitely at the south end of Kootenay lake. So far the Globe has preserved a masterly silence on that point, while its western end is declaring that this was the bargain. It would be in order for the Globe to speak now.

WOODWORTH'S LETTER.

The following extracts from C. M. Woodworth's letter, of August 26th, may be of interest:

"I reached Fort Selkirk about June 21st and met Fred Herbert, who is known in Edmonton, and who came in by this (Teslin lake) route. He had been on the road ever since February and had undergone fearful hardships. The Stikkeen is swift and shallow. The 150 miles or so of portage from Glenora to Teslin lake is one of tremendous difficulty."

"It becomes more evident every day that the St. Michael's route is too slow even for freight, and that the routes by either Dyea or Skagway are the only practicable ones for this country."

"The corrupt and imbecile administration of this country is past description. I have blushed so often for the good name of my country that I have become hardened and bluish no more. I cannot go fully into the matter in this letter."

"I can imagine how vicious of Sodom would arise in the minds of certain good church going people in the east had they seen the social features of Major Walsh's regime."

"Mr. Bulyea, the representative of the Northwest government, came in here last spring and collected license fees from ten saloon keepers. He had not gone further when Walsh arrived on the scene and told the saloon keepers to disregard Bulyea, and that they required no license whatever. He followed up this bold course by seizing all the liquor brought into the country on Northwest permits and Dawson became a wide open town. Mr. Bulyea sought an interview with Major Walsh in vain; no proposition for a modus vivendi would be heard. By and by the courts took it up. Walsh instructed Wade, his lawyer, to keep the thing dallying, and when the courts had finally pronounced an opinion against Walsh's conduct he was out of the country. This license and permit fees to the amount of more than $100,000 were lost to one government or the other."

As to the work of a mining board organized by Major Walsh to supervise gold commissioner Fawcett: "One certain result was that as to the creek claims on Dominion, they seem to be in a fair way to be reserved for friends at Ottawa; and as to the bench claims, Major Walsh, by issuing orders and countermanning them give the faithful here a certain preference, and jobbed the honest prospector. But in the mining recorder's office all the iniquities that could be grafted in flourished amazingly as if on fruitful soil. This resulted from the fact that the government had blundered fearfully in making mining laws for this country. The most honest and faithful recorder could scarcely have fitted them to the set of facts that was here. Mr. Fawcett simply put the 1897 regulations in his pocket and they were not known here until the spring of 1898, when the 1898 regulations had already superseded them. Now whether claims staked during this time were 500 feet, 100 feet or 250 feet, or whether there were any reservations depend upon whether the official acts of Mr. Fawcett dealing with the miners over-rides the law made by the cabinet. It is hard to see how the government in these grants, can fail to honor the acts of their own official, but on the other hand Mr. Fawcett is an extremely weak administrator. He is vacillating and the records of his office are so far behind that they are useless to any but clerks in his office and those to whom they supply them. . . . Corruption and jobbery flourish more than I can even lead you to suppose. Mr. Fawcett issues decrees in direct opposition to the mining regulations, and then some fine morning revokes those decrees, and those who depended upon them are left. This might be more easily understood if it were not that Mr. Fawcett is apparently an honest Christian man. It would pay the government, however, to pension him and put a competent man in his place even if it cost a million dollars a year. The loss to the country by his holding the position thus far has far exceeded this sum; but no corrupt official could desire this man to be removed. His honesty is a cloak to them and his vacillation their opportunity."

"As you know I have always been in favor of the royalty system, but I am opposed to a tax on labor. Now ten dollars a day in the Klondike is about starvation wages. If a man works 300 days in the year his wages would amount to $3,000. If 10 men are employed working on a claim, then the wages would amount to $30,000, and to put a royalty on this $30,000 would be putting a tax on industry. It would be a strong deterrent against employing any men whatever, and would tend to close up the mines of the country. Now most of the mines of this country at the present time cannot afford to pay a very large royalty. Some can afford to pay none. A tax on the gross output is simply madness, as in the instance above. If 10 men work and produce only $30,000 no tax should be paid. I presume it would be conceded that no tax should be paid if the produce was but $35,000 or $40,000, as this would only cover wages and a small exemption. The excess might be taxed by a royalty of say five per cent. My argument is that the royalty is too high, and that it should be on the net output and not on the gross. It is misleading to take the ten best claims on Eldorado as the standard. Many men last winter worked on other claims where the whole output would not have paid more than $4 or $5 a day. Moreover the royalty, like every other unjust tax, is evaded in every possible way."

"A mineral land law act, applicable to the Yukon Territory should be immediately passed through parliament. The registration part should follow our land titles act of 1894, and the grants and tenure of the claims more nearly follow the laws of British Columbia."

McDOUGALL PASS.

H. Anthony gives the following additional particulars regarding the Peel river route, in a letter to Jas. Lauder, Sr.:

Mr. Anthony left Simpson on May 19th in company with J. Horsfall. Geo. Purches and Filadeau caught up to them next day and travelled with them to the summit. At La Pierre's house Purches and Filadeau parted and Purches joined Anthony and Horsfall, Filadeau taking another course, probably up the Porcupine, while Anthony and the others went down it to Fort Yukon. The party started up Rat river on June 13th, and reached La Pierre's house, on Bell river, on July 15th. "The McDougall pass is all right for boats drawing eight inches of water and carrying 1,000 to 1,200 pounds. Our selves and Purches had about this amount and we doubled up the rapids. It was a little slow, but we got to La Pierre's house with our full cargo. We only portaged the boat in one place on Rat river. This was about 150 yards."

"At La Pierre's house we met some men who had just come over the Long portage from Fort Macpherson and were starting by raft for Fort Yukon. They told us there were about 180 boats at Peel river, and that the men were nearly all coming by the Long portage. The Indians were charging $40 a hundred to pack across, besides grub, tobacco and shoes, and when these men left were on strike."

Parties who had been up the Porcupine prospecting had returned to Bell river and reported it no good. They left Bell river on July 17th and passed Rampart house on July 24th. "The Bell and Porcupine are both good rivers to travel on. There are a few rapids on the Porcupine, but they are deep and straight. Frank Wishart is with us. The Segers party is five days ahead. Langworthy's party of four was the first over the summit."

Four men can bring 2,200 pounds over proving they have two small boats and double up, but two men cannot handle half the amount."

GOLD DREDGE OTTER.

The large gold dredge of the Saskatchewan Gold & Platinum Prospecting Company, now being constructed at J. Walter's boat yard, is rapidly approaching completion. The hull of the scow has been finished for some time and the machinery is now being put in place under the direct supervision of the manager, A. E. Hogue. The scow is 86x26x6, and will draw about 2 feet 3 inches of water. It is square at the stern but the bow is rounded. When at work the scow is held in place by two heavy spuds set at the stern of the boat. The dredging apparatus is on the bucket and chain principle, and projects from the bow of the boat. The timbers carrying the buckets can be raised or lowered at will, but cannot be swung from side to side except by swinging the whole boat. This is done by raising one of the spuds at the stern and swinging the boat from side to side on the other. The rounded bow allows this to be done freely, so that the dredge can clear a channel for the scow. The scow has no propelling machinery. The several processes of raising and saving the gold require six engines of aggregating 130 horse power, for which steam is provided by a boiler of 150 horse power. The dredge buckets take the gravel from the bottom of the river and raise it to an elevation of 25 feet above the water. The buckets empty by upsetting into a hopper. A double jet of water discharging into the bucket as it empties helps to clear it out thoroughly. The hopper discharges into a revolving barrel grizzly or screen 42 inches in diameter and twelve feet long, set at a slight slope. The barrel or cylinder is of steel plate perforated with one-eighth inch holes. The stones and coarse gravel which are too large to go through the perforations in the grizzly are discharged into and through a two foot iron pipe, which conducts the waste gravel 80 feet in rear of the dredge or to either side as may be desired. A ten inch centrifugal pump supplies water to the grizzly to wash and clean the coarse gravel, and another jet from the same pump sluices the coarse gravel through the discharge pipe. The sand and small gravel which passes through the perforations in the grizzly falls onto a large jig screen, 20 feet by six, where a still further separation between coarse and fine takes place. The former is waste and passes off, while the black sand, gold and very fine gravel fall into a large iron tank. From the bottom of the tank the sand is discharged through holes in the sides on to four blanket tables, each 13x6 feet, two on each side of the tank. The blankets revolve and are self cleaning. The gold and black sand are caught in these blankets and deposited in vats of water through which the blankets pass. Throughout the process is much the same as that of the hand miner, the appliances being merely adapted to machinery. The jig tables have been used for many years in the concentration of lead, zinc and copper ores, but are new in gold. There is an accessory 6 inch centrifugal pump for clearing up from the bottom of the river the gravel which has been loosened and not been brought up by the buckets. The machinery was built by the Bucyrus Co., of South Milwaukee, the gold saving apparatus being made according to special design by Mr. Hogue. There are 32 dredge buckets, each weighing 365 pounds. The backs are of cast steel. The lips are of wrought steel and are detachable. The dredge will cost when completed about $38,000. Of this amount railway freight was about $5,000; duty $4,000; material of scow $1,200; wages on construction $5,200. J. E. Beauchemin of Sorel, Quebec, is the mechanical superintendent of the work. It is expected to be in working order about Oct. 15th. The name of the dredge is the Otter. When at work one man will operate the dredging apparatus, one the gold saving apparatus and there will be two or three laborers. The capacity of the dredge is 3,100 cubic yards in 24 hours. The company expects to wash about 2,500 yards in that time.

A stern wheel steamer 65x15x3 feet 6 inches is also being constructed to be used as a tender and tug for the dredge. This steamer is fitted with 45 horse power engines and has a guaranteed speed of 11 miles an hour in still water. She will draw only twelve inches of water with a load of 10 to 15 tons.

Besides the dredge and tender there will be an additional scow for use as boarding house for the men employed. The steamer will cost about $4,000.

The company building the dredge and steamer are the parties who purchased the sub-aqueous dredging lease of G. Drole.

WETASKIWIN.

(Correspondence.)

The long talked of redistribution of seats having resulted in the election of a Wetaskiwin electoral district, Mr. A. S. Rosenroll, of Wetaskiwin, has, at the request of many farmers and business men from various parts of the new district, entered the field as a candidate for election to the next legislative assembly. Mr. Rosenroll is engaged in farming and ranching and has for a long time been closely associated with movements for the advancement of creamery interests and better legislation affecting education and farming and ranching. Being intimately acquainted with the conditions existing in, and the needs of this district, Mr. Rosenroll is eminently fitted to be its representative. Mr. Rosenroll has the support of large bodies of electors in all parts of the district and present indications point to his being elected by acclamation. Should such be the case it would be no more than his ability and popularity should win for him. The harvest here is nearing completion and the farmers have realized much better returns than had been expected. The yield and quality have been good. Very fine samples of grain are being shown. Preparations for the fall show of the Wetaskiwin agricultural society are being made and the show promises to be a very creditable one to the society and the Wetaskiwin settlements. Mr. Spar is shipping some car loads of cattle east. The inspector of brands and hides is a busy man just now.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.
Gentlemen:—For the last twelve months I have been suffering with poor health. Meeting with serious financial loss, I began to feel nervous and exhausted, and my mind was so confused that I found it difficult to perform my routine duties in the Customs service. I was obliged to stop work, and was granted a three months' leave of absence by the government. I consulted some of the best physicians in the country but they did not agree about what ailed me, and I got but little relief. About three months ago a friend sent me three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound with the request that I take it. I am now taking the sixth bottle, and am doing my work regularly. I have gained several pounds in weight, my appetite has improved, and I am able to perform as difficult mental work as at any time in my life. I am confident that Paine's Celery Compound has been of great benefit to me.

PROHIBITION MEETING

A meeting in the interests of prohibition was held in Robertson Hall on Wednesday evening. The chair was occupied by J. A. McDougall. Rev. Messrs Freeman and Gordon were the principal speakers. Messrs. Jas. Martin and Mr. Reading, from Kansas, also spoke, the latter giving his experience of prohibition in Kansas, claiming that the prohibition law was a benefit. Only one speaker took the floor against prohibition. The hall was well filled and the meeting was evidently largely in favor of prohibition.

WALTHER CONCERT.

The concert by Prof. and Madame Walther on Monday evening, was attended by a large and appreciative audience. To hear these talented artists is to taste of the best that civilization has to offer. As a violinist Prof. Walther is acknowledged to surpass any who have ever appeared here. Madame Walther's songs were above every criticism, and were received with every expression of appreciation. Miss Eschelman, as accompanist was also excellent. Mr. Randall, of Edmonton, made a decided hit in his bass song "The Bandalero." He was compelled to respond to the applause with an encore which was quite as good as the first song. In both songs Mr. Randall excelled himself, which is saying a good deal. The Waltthers will be welcomed by the music lovers of Edmonton whenever they may be able to return.

If You Use Diamond Dyes
You Make Dollars.

If You Use Poor and Adulterated
Dyes You Ruin Your Goods and Waste Money.

The ladies of Canada know well that the using of Diamond Dyes means the saving of many dollars, and thousands will tell you that the use of poor and adulterated dyes means ruin to goods and loss of money. The wonder working Diamond Dyes combine immense variety, merit and usefulness. Diamond Dyes are prepared in forty-eight colors for the coloring of wool, silk, feathers and cotton goods. Minute and simple directions go with each package of the Diamond Dyes, so that the most inexperienced person can do as good work as the professional dyer.

Bear in mind that imitators are continually trying to copy the style and package of Diamond Dyes. When you buy dyes for home dyeing see that your dealer supplies you with the "Diamond," no other make of package dyes will do your work with profit and satisfaction. Send to Wells & Richardson C., Montreal, Que., for valuable book of directions and sample card of colors; sent free to any address.

GENTLEMEN:—
A number of the electors of the district of Victoria having requested me to offer as a candidate in the election for a representative in the Legislative Assembly of the Territories to be held very soon, I announce my consent to do so and hereby solicit the support of each voter in the constituency.

IT DOESN'T PAY

To put off buying a Wrap too long. The real good you get out of a new Cloak, Jacket or Cape is early in the season when the skies are clear and the sidewalks dry.

Later, when the gloom of midwinter settles down upon everything, a warm room holds you and a wardrobe holds your wrap. This weather invites you out of doors, and our beautiful line of Cloaks and Capes invites your investments.

Can you resist all this? Nay, verily. You will find style, fit, durability in every Jacket, not flash and show, but sterling worth.
